REFUSES TO BE HANDICAPPED

One-Armed Seattle (Wash.) Boy Supports Himself, Plays Cornet and Pitches Baseball.

Tony Jumpnick lost his left arm when he was seven years old. He is now thirteen. He is doing eighth-grade work at school and expects to be ready for high school next June. His father is dead and his mother is in humble circumstances, says the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

On the play field he does everything that is worth doing, and he is pitcher on a good ball team. He swims like a fish and dives from the highest pile he has found on the shore of Lake Washington.

He carries a paper route. He buys his own clothes. And he has a bank account.

Five years ago he began to use his spare moments blowing sour notes out of a bugle. After a lot of hard practice the sour notes were supplanted with sweet ones. Then he began to use a cornet. Now he is the solo cornetist in the Parental School band. He reads music readily and the quality of his playing is exceptionally good. Recently he drew on his bank account and bought a beautiful $65 cornet.

BLARNEY

"Oh! George; look at those little buds up there. Some day they will all be peaches."

"Well, you were a bud once."

RURAL SPOT IN GOTHAM.

Chickens and horses and a vegetable garden just off Broadway, in the Morningside Heights section, are the unique urban sights of New York. The "farm" runs from One Hundred and Twenty-second to One Hundred and Twenty-third streets, from Broadway to Amsterdam avenue. Horses roam tranquilly over this block for their pasture; chickens peck peacefully at the seeds, and just to the west subway trains clatter thunderously into the open as they make their way to the elevated station at Manhattan street, bearing thousands of city folk whose homes bound the "farm" on the north. The owner of the estate has lived there for fifty years. Today, however, the "farm," with its wooden shanties, is an oddity among the surrounding apartment buildings.

HAPPY MEMORY.

"I hear you spent the summer at a fashionable resort."

"Yes," said Mr. Dubwaite. "That was to please the wife, you know."

"But don't you ever go anywhere to please yourself?"

"Well," he replied, wistfully, "some years ago I attended a bar-tenders' picnic."

CASEY'S PROBLEM.

"O! hear that Casey is havin' trouble wid his better half."

"Yis; she wants to be the whole thing."—Pearson's Weekly.

DEPLORABLE ERROR.

Duckmore—What impoverished Patterson?

Rusley—He mistook a taxi for a jitney.

A COMMON MISFORTUNE.

"I see the moon has reached its last quarter."

"So have lots of other folks."—Baltimore American.

HIS KIND.

"The young English nobleman the girls are so crazy about is a regular glass of fashion."

"Exactly; a peer glass."

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

"I saw your wife yesterday."

"Did you? What did she say?"

"Oh, nothing."

"That wasn't my wife."

Worth Weight in Gold.

Abingdom, Va.—Mrs. Jennie McCal of this place, says, "I had been troubled with neural complaints, for over ten years. I could not walk or stand on my feet, and had been almost confined to the house, for a long time. I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and now I can walk anywhere I want to go. Cardui is worth its weight in gold." This is a high estimate on a plain, herb medicine, yet there are thousands of women who would gladly pay this price for a remedy to relieve their suffering. Cardui has helped others. Why not you? Try it. Your druggist sells it, in $1. bottles. —Advertisement.

SALVADOR WELL PEOPLED.

The person who thinks of all Central America as a jungle will be surprised to learn that Salvador has more people to the square mile than any country in the world except Belgium. The density of population is six times that of the United States. The people even crowd close up to the bases of the eleven dangerous volcanoes, some of them so active as to be called "infernillos," or "little hells." There are other "little hells" in Salvador, even worse than the volcanoes. One is 70 per cent of illegitimacy. One is lack of sanitation. One is the tremendous burden upon the women. — Dan Ward, in World Outlook.

Remarkable Strength of Fly.

By harnessing a fly to a tiny wagon an English scientist found it could draw 170 times its own weight over smooth surfaces.

THE KENTUCKIAN FOR 1917

The Kentuckian on Jan. 1, 1917, rounds out its 38th year. Under normal conditions the year 1916 would have been a year of unusual prosperity, but as the public is aware the exorbitant and unprecedented price charged for News Print Paper cut a deep hole in the profits of all newspapers and many unable to stand losses were put out of business. The Kentuckian enters the new year with print paper that cost $54 ton at this time last year now costing about $140 for the same amount of paper not as good. How long these conditions will continue cannot be foretold.

Many newspapers have advanced rates but in order that the circulation may not be lessened by a higher price the Kentuckian will still be sent for $2.00 a year, the old price. It will be necessary though to adhere rigidly to the cash system, since more than $1.00 must be paid in advance for the paper upon which we print 156 papers and the cost of printing leaves but little profit out of the second dollar. We are asking our old subscribers to stand by us in this crisis by renewing promptly. Advertisers will also be asked to pay a slightly higher rate for space, which is all a newspaper has to sell outside of its subscriptions. We trust the advertising public will see the reasonableness of this step.

All papers not paid for will be Stopped. Don't Let Yours Stop.

The Price Will be the same as heretofore,

$2.00 A YEAR
